Short-term fix for boaters: better access to old ramp

■ Long-term plans may include new boat launch facility on south side of barge canal; closer on the horizon is a new 'rail to trail' conversion of an old railroad between the canal and Gregory Road

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The City of West Sacramento has hired a contractor to improve public access to the waters of the barge canal and the Port of Sacramento. But for owners of larger boats, like those used by many local fishermen, the project won't be of much help.

David Shpak, parks planner for the city, told the News-Ledger yesterday that improvements being made west of Jefferson Boulevard on the south side of the barge canal will aid access to an old launching ramp. What the project won't do is improve the ramp itself.

"There is an old concrete ramp there in very poor condition," said Shpak. "Due to a combination of its surface, its slope and its actual angle off the top of the levee, it's not a safe area for public use. So there will still be a motor vehicle barrier – we can't let people drive down there."

People will, however, be able to come to the launch site from a new, signalized intersection on Jefferson Boulevard across from South River Road.

"If they can hand-portage their boat – a small fishing boat, a canoe or a kayak – they can carry it into the water there," said Shpak.

For owners of larger, trailerable boats, there is no true "public" access to the same waters. There are only the private rowing, sailing and "outboard" clubs on the north side of the port, accessible to members through a locked gate.

Why not fix the old barge canal ramp now?

"If we had tried to repair the boat ramp, we'd probably still be in talks with the regulatory agencies, and probably would be for another year. This is a popular place for recreation. We want to open it up."

Shpak added that the city council has asked city staff to find a way to do so "expeditiously," and this plan looked like the best thing to do for the short term.

A more complete solution may yet be on the drawing boards.

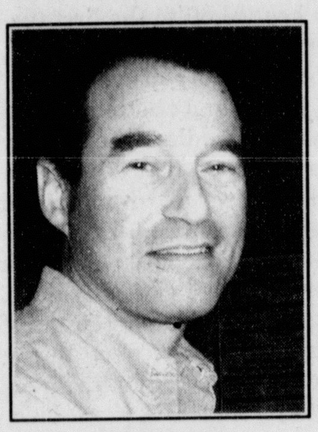
"While the parks master plan adopted in 2003 envisions access to the barge canal at this site, there is no set plan on how recreational uses will be developed there," he commented. "Right now, that property is under discussion for development plans between the city and an equity company, the Cordish Company."

The Cordish Company is being retained to help West Sacramento come up with a master plan for over 200 acres of waterfront property – including the barge canal site that is now home to the old boat ramp. It didn't make sense to spend a lot of money fixing the old ramp if the new plans might call for it to be moved, he explained.

Shpak also commented on a couple of other things going on in the city's parks system.

One of those is a "rails to trails" project involving much of the old rail line parallel to Jefferson Boulevard in Southport, the city's southern half.

"(Track owner) Sierra Northern Railroad is removing the tracks and rail," said Shpak. "One of the things we're involved in now is short-term, low cost improvements to help stabilize the surface of these track beds, so people can walk on it and ride on off-road (bicycles) or horses on it. We will, in very short order, have a nice trail to walk on."



DAVID SHPAK
City Parks Planner

The trail will soon be active from the barge canal south to Gregory Road.

North of that, towards the freeway, the rail is still an active line. South of Gregory Road, the trail may take longer to develop because of "privacy" issues as it travels through working farms and raises issues of safety and trespassing. Negotiations are underway with neighbors of the trail to the south, said Shpak.

Another piece of news for the city's trail system, said Shpak, is a new path crossing over the "main drain canal."

"We'll be constructing a pedestrian and bike bridge over the main drain canal, between Patwin Park and Summerfield Park. This will provide another opportunity for the eventual high school (traffic), and for people to get from Bridgeway Island and Bridgeway Lakes to the town center area."

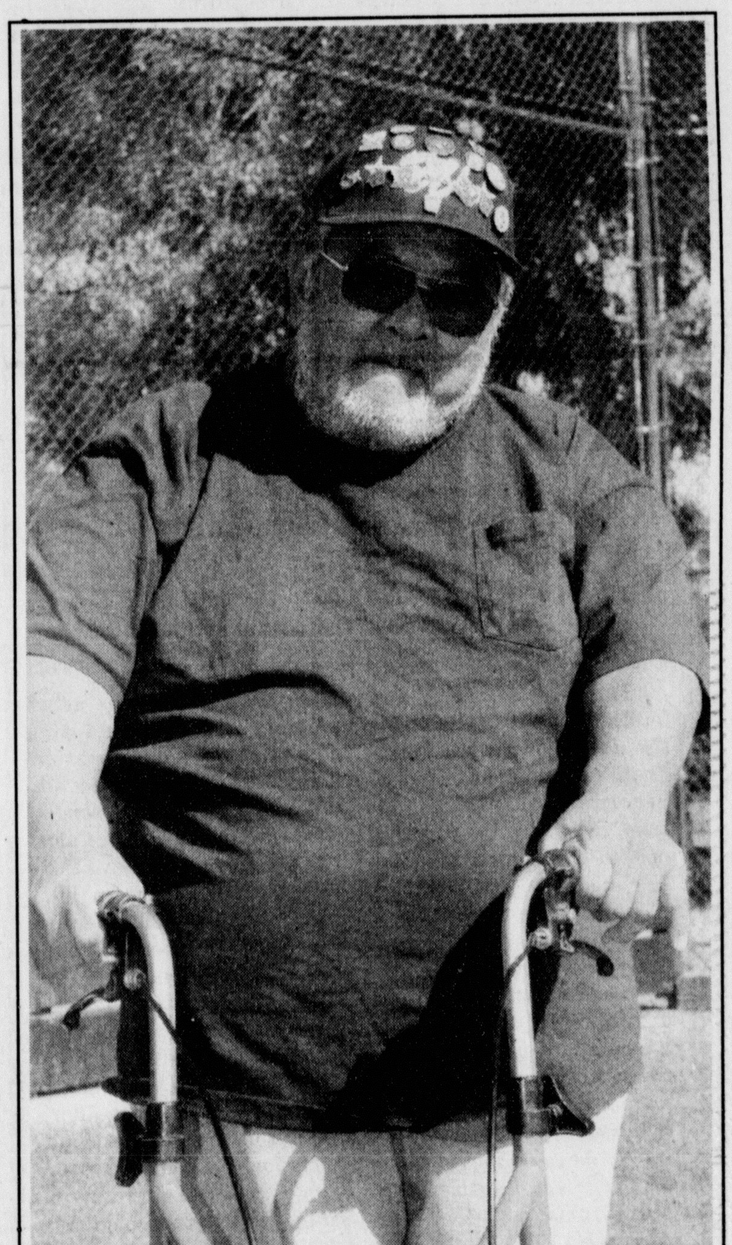
Trails such as these won't be open to motorized traffic, but will be open to walkers, bicyclists and equestrians.

"We're going to have to learn to walk together in that kind of proximity, but I think it's something we can do," said Shpak.

A perennial baseball coach

■ West Sacramento's Dave Dazo reflects on nearly a lifetime teaching baseball & football

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor



DAVID DAZO: retired, but not from coaching baseball

Dave Dazo figures he has coached about 45 seasons for Washington Little League in West Sacramento's north area. Add to that many other seasons spent coaching at River City High School, and for other youth baseball programs, and for youth football programs, and Dazo has about as much experience coaching youth as anybody around.

"I helped build the little league field over on Sacramento Avenue in '61," said Dazo, age 65. "I was only a year out of high school. I played baseball all my life, and before they had little league and Pop Warner, I coached Catholic Youth League. I coached Pop Warner for 15 years and River City High for 15 years and Little League for 45.

Much of Dazo's coaching at River City was as an assistant coach to former head coach Rod Massie.

"I will coach this year (for Washington Little League) but I haven't done it for three years because I had a hip replacement."

Dazo says he believes in teaching youngsters "the fundamentals," and he considers himself a "pitching coach."

"The kids are not into it like they used to be. They're all into computers and they don't want to practice anymore. Parents throw them at us because they want a babysitter. When I see they don't want to play ball, I send them home. I don't want them to get hurt."

It was easier to field strong teams in previous years, he said.

"We were competitive," said Dazo. "We taught our kids to work hard and play ball. All the games were 2-1, 3-1. Now, they make two many errors and 'walks.' Back in the old days, the pitchers were striking everybody out and players made no errors, played good defense."

But the kids Dazo sees growing up in the north area are not the gangsters he feels they are portrayed as.

"We've got a lot of good kids here," he commented. "There are a few bad kids here, but those are everywhere. They say we have 400 gang members here. I know everybody in Broderick. We have maybe 15 'hard core' and 20 or 30 'wannabes.' Since I've lived here, there have been only maybe two or three killings, and maybe one was gang-related.'"

Dazo has lived in West Sacramento since 1947, and says that some of the trouble is now being caused by newcomers from Southern California.

"Every time they do something, we get blamed for it," he said. "They're from down south and they come here because there's no room for them down there. All my friends kids are working. We've got a lot of good kids."

Dazo lives with his wife in West Sacramento's 'Broderick' neighborhood. Among their children and grandson are several young people now playing baseball.

"I'm retired now, but I was a cook for 25 years and then worked for a big furniture place for 20 years. My dad taught me to cook, because he was a cook. I quit school because I had to get a trade. Later, I made furniture for a big company called Kanowsky's. They closed down in '95."

Some things change. Dave Dazo's presence in the dugout never seems to.

Campus ribbon-cutting

It was the first day of school for students all around the Washington Unified School District one week ago today.

But for the Stonegate Elementary School campus on La Jolla Street, it was the first day of school ever.

'Green' Yolo project honored

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has welcomed Yolo County as a member of their "Green Power Partnership" in recognition of county efforts to lessen its environmental impacts. The award is partly in recognition of the county's "green" efforts in the construction of the new Herbert Bauer M.D. Health and Alcohol, Drug & Mental Health Building.

The EPA's Green Power Partnership encourages organizations to buy green power as a way to lessen the environmental impacts associated with conventional electricity use.

The Bauer building, constructed in 2006 to consolidate into one central location eight county health programs, promotes sustainable design in a variety of ways, including roof solar panels. The half-megawatt system replaces the equivalent energy used by 200 California homes, leaving that energy on the grid for other uses. The solar cell system also prevents 600 tons of carbon dioxide from being emitted into the atmosphere annually.

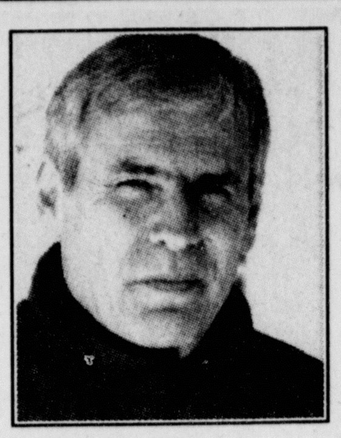
"The spaces previously used by the departments of Health and Alcohol Drug & Mental Health annually saw $180,000 in conventional fossil fuel energy consumption," said General Services Director Ray Groom. "The net reduction in utility costs, including the solar cell contribution, will be approximately $70,000 and this environmentally sound system will produce power for at least twenty five years without ever contributing pollutants to the environment."

The solar cell system generates approximately forty percent of the power for the building during peak demand hours. Under California's net metering regulations, public utilities must credit energy producers for the electricity they send to the grid. On sunny days and weekends the system sends the extra energy it generates to the grid ultimately earning credit with PG&E. At night or on rainy days, PG&E provides the power and Yolo County taps into the credit earned while the sun was shining.

"Yolo County is committed to reducing our environmental footprint and proud of the specific measures we've taken with the construction of the Bauer building, including solar roofing, bike commuter amenities, alternative vehicle preferred parking, and environmentally sound landscaping," said Board of Supervisors Chair Mariko Yamada.

"So, Dad, I hear you got yourself a 'hole in one'?"

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

.If you have as many grown children as I do (four) it is almost impossible to somehow gather them all up at one time, drag them away from their busy lives, and have a family vacation. Over the years, however, I have learned that if I save up all my pennies for a year or so and then rent a little house by the sea for a weekend, they will all almost magically show up (providing of course that the refrigerator is stocked with lots of tasty food and all their favorite beverages).

So, this past weekend, my whole family (including my mother and my brother and his wife) left the Sacramento Valley and its heat/bad air in the dust and gathered once again at the ocean. The weather turned out to be mostly overcast and in the 60's, but that actually turned out to be a real treat after suffering through so many months of the summer heat. And as usual, there were plenty of gorgeous beaches to stroll along, lots of great conversations to participate in, and most important of all, just the overall fun and enjoyment that every parent experiences when his or her kids are all gathered in the same place. Plus this year, there was to be (or so I at least thought) an extra-added treat awaiting me at the ocean, which brings me to my little story.

For the past year or so, my son-in-law (who is a very good golfer) has been taking me along with him a couple of times a month in an effort to rekindle the love I once had for the game when I was younger, and it has worked. And since the Holy Grail of the sport for most golfers is to experience what it is like to chase your little white ball around a beautifully manicured course near the sea, my son-in-law had arranged for us to tee-up on one of the local courses at exactly 2 p.m. on the last afternoon of our mini-vacation.

So, for most of the weekend, the two of us could hardly talk about anything else. The photos we had seen on the Internet of the course we were going to play made it look like Pebble Beach itself, and when the hour to gather up our clubs finally arrived, we were both almost giddy with anticipation.

When we arrived at the course, the first thing Dallas and I noticed was that there were very few golfers on it, which really surprised us since it was such a beautiful Sunday afternoon. Then came an even bigger shock! Instead of the course being located right near the ocean, it was mostly laid out in and amongst hundreds of very expensive-looking homes, all of which seemed to be made out of mostly glass windows which no doubt afforded the occupants really great views of the nearby sea. Anyway, still thrilled to be on a lush, hilly and truly beautiful golf course relatively close to the ocean, we eagerly headed off to the first tee, sure that we were going to experience one of our most enjoyable rounds of golf ever.

On the first hole, Dallas and I both hit super drives -- right down the middle of the fairway -- which is always a great way to start out a round of golf. And when we got to our second shots, all I had left was a little 5-iron to an elevated green, which looked like it would be a piece of cake. However, like I usually do at least a couple of times during every round of golf I play, my swing came down over the top of the ball and off it went, straight as an arrow, but way left of my target.

"Did you see where my ball went?" I quickly asked Dallas.

"Not exactly," said Dallas with fear in his eyes, "but it was definitely headed for that big fancy gray house over there made out of nothing but glass!"

"But I didn't hear anything break," I said hopefully. "Did you?"

"No, all I heard was a big loud thud. Maybe you lucked out and the place is made of safety glass or something."

After Dallas hit his second shot (which landed softly in the middle of the green like it was supposed to), off we bravely went in search of my wayward ball. And sure enough, it had crashed right into a gorgeous home that would easily take me a couple of lifetimes to afford, not to mention the decade or so I would need to make enough money at the News-Ledger to replace its gigantic front window. Miraculously, my ball had hit seemingly the only wooden surface on the whole house (right above the biggest window) and bounced all the way back out into the fairway. And after waiting around for a good five minutes while the owner of the place carefully inspected every inch of the front of his prized property and took down my name and phone number (in case he found something wrong later I guess), off Dallas and I finally went to play the next hole, both of us very relieved to have dodged such a huge bullet.

So, as I nervously stood in the tee box of the second hole, which had even more million-dollar glass homes guarding each side of the fairway, just to be safe, I decided to carefully go through my entire golf swing checklist (different for every golfer of course). To begin with, I made sure my Arnold Palmer grip was perfect. Then, along with a dozen or so other reminders, I quickly covered the following: keep your head really still during your swing; take the club back slowly; don't hold the handle too tightly, because Jack Nicklaus says that will almost always guarantee a slice or hook; and when you follow through with your swing, try to finish with your hands high -- and on the tips of your toes -- just like Tiger Woods always does. Then, trying to remember as best I could all of the above, I took a mighty swing at my golf ball, and much to my horror, I hit it exactly the same way I had on the previous hole, and off it screamed towards yet another mini-mansion made of glass.

"Oh, @#&%$*!" I cried out.

And this time, there was nothing for Dallas and I to do but wait for the sickening sound of shattered glass, which only took seconds to reach our straining ears.

"Well, Daryl, I think you just killed that house," said Dallas, slowly shaking his head from side to side as he slumped further down in our golf cart, "and at the rate you're going, dude, I figure it's going to cost you about ten thousand dollars to play this round of golf."

"Yeah," I said, "I can see the broken window from here, but I don't think it's the big picture window, though -- just one of the smaller ones below it. And yuck, here comes the home owner already -- with a pencil and a piece of paper in her hand -- and she's definitely going to want my name and phone number just like that last guy did."

"So, what are you going to do?" asked Dallas with a devilish grin on his face which seemed to hold out the possibility that if I wanted to make a run for it, I just might be able to talk him into driving the getaway cart.

"You know," I finally answered, having long been aware of the fact that although you can take a person out of West Sacramento, you can never really take the West Sacramento out of the person, "I think maybe this time I'll just say my name is Christopher Cabaldon and give her a City of West Sacramento phone number."

"You think that will work?" asked Dallas, his grin becoming a full smile.

"Probably not," I admitted, "but it will at least stir things up a bit back at home and make for a pretty good column."

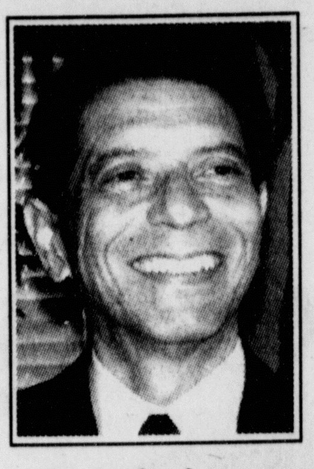
SPORTS

SPORTS INSIDER

By Rich Novoa



By Richard Novoa

Are you ready for some football? That's right the season has arrived so grab your chips, remote control and the coldest drink you can find and brace yourself for another rollercoaster season that starts with college football on Saturday.

The NFL season officially kicks off next Thursday, September 6th when the Saints march into Indianapolis to play the defending Super Bowl champion Colts. The rest of the league will lace'um up on Sunday, September 9th.

The Niners (7:15 p.m.) will tackling the Arizona Cardinals in the second game of a Monday night football ESPN doubleheader featuring the Ravens and Bengals (4 p.m.) in the first game from Cincy.

The NCAA college season will be in full bloom on Saturday with the Cal Bears hosting the Tennessee Volunteers (5 p.m.) and UCLA at Stanford (12:30 p.m.). Here's an interesting game to watch. The mighty USC Trojans will be favored by 45 points when they host Idaho on Saturday. Who schedules these games?

On the local front, the Sacramento State Hornets will be braking in new quarterback, Jason Smith, on Saturday night (7 p.m.) in Fresno when the Hornets play the heavily favored Bulldogs and UCD Aggies host Western Washington (noon).

NFL Notes

All NFL teams must cut their rosters to 53 by September 1st so look for the 49ers, who will finish up their preseason on Thursday night (7 p.m. - ch.13) in San Diego to rest their first string which will include Frank Gore who was cleared to play after breaking his hand in practice.

The Niners were brought down to reality last Saturday in Chicago where the Bears jumped all over the 49ers early and often. The Niners, who lost 31-28, actually trailed the Bears first unit 24-7 midway through the second quarter.

Oakland Raiders, who are preparing for their preseason finale in Seattle (7 p.m.-ch. 58), are still looking for a team leader. The Raiders won their exhibition contest last Friday night 20-10 over the Rams but are still trying to decide whether Josh McCown or Daunte Culpepper will start at quarterback in their season opener next Sunday (1:15 p.m.) at home against Detroit.

You can bet it won't be JaMarcus Russell but Mr. Davis is refusing to open up his wallet as wide as Russell's agent would like. My money is on Culpepper to become the new starter because owner is in love with throwing the long ball and what ever Davis wants Davis gets!

Speaking of money my boxer dog, Aztec, returns next week for his canine college and NFL picks of the week! The Dawg in training for another exciting season and has been seen playing Madden 07 and watching the NFL network channel 24/7.

Diamond Notes

The Giants (60-72) are out of the pennant race but the team is having lots of fun and has won five games in a row and 10 of their last 12. Meanwhile the Oakland A's are having their own problems and were pounded the hapless Devil Rays over the weekend. After losing, 12-2, to the A's on Thursday night, the Rays rebounded to take the final three games of the series by a combined score of 33-9, pounding out 46 hits in the process.

On the other hand the River Cats continue to win and inch closer to Southern Division title and the PCL playoffs. Sacramento is four games ahead of second-place Tucson, with 7 games left. The Gatos will close out their regular home season on Thursday night with their fan appreciation game. Playoff tickets are available at the Raley Field box office or log on to www.rivercats.com.

Kings Korner

The Kings signed Kevin Martin to a five-year deal worth about $55 million which is an extension that starts in 2008-09. Martin will be paid $1.8 million this season and become the third highest salary on the roster behind the $11.4 million paid to Miller and Bibby's $14.5 per season.

The United States (5-0) basketball team remains unbeaten in FIBA Americas tournament and improved to 31-0 in Olympic qualifying games. You would hope that the boys from the U.S.A. would remain undefeated with players like Kobe, Wade, Anthony and King James. The teams first two wins over Venezuela and the Virgin Islands, were by a combined score of 235-128.

Between the Ropes

Boxing returns to the area on Thursday night at the Colusa Casino (7:30 p.m.) featuring some local talent. Otis Griffin, current NABO Light heavyweight champion and former Olympian Michael Simms will headline the card. Also on the card is amateur sensation and Chico phenomenon Ava Knight making her professional debut and her boyfriend Mario Hernandez (1-0), who will be going for his second professional win.

Enjoy your day – see ya next week!

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• You might be surprised to learn that there are no distilleries in the town of Bourbon, Kentucky.

• Bausch & Lomb, a company best known for its eye-care products, was originally known as Vulcanite Optical Instrument Company.

• Celine Dion and Gladys Knight both made their public singing debuts when they were only 5 years old.

• Unless you've been living under a rock, you've heard of the seventh, and final, installment in the Harry Potter series, "Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows." It's now become the fastest-selling book in history, with 11 million copies being purchased in the first 24 hours alone. The series has been so successful that the author, J.K. Rowling, is the first person to become a billionaire by writing books. According to Forbes, she is the second richest female entertainer in the world (after Oprah Winfrey, of course), and the magazine also ranked her as the 48th most powerful celebrity for 2007. With all her fame and money, it's interesting to note that Rowling was once fired for writing on the job.

• It was libertarian author and lecturer James Bovard who, in 1994, made the following sage observation: "Democracy must be something more than two wolves and a sheep voting on what to have for dinner."

• Those who study first families of the United States say that first lady Pat Nixon ironed her own dresses, first lady Rosalynn Carter mended the family's clothes, and President Harry Truman washed his own undergarments.

• The last state to officially abolish slavery was Mississippi — and it wasn't until 1995 that it happened.

VETERANS ★ POST ★

by Freddy Groves

VA Stall Tactics

One has to wonder whose side the Department of Veterans Affairs is really on.

In 1989, veterans challenged a VA regulation concerning which diseases were associated with exposure to Agent Orange (dioxin), and won. In 1991, Congress produced legislation saying that Vietnam veterans who had those diseases were presumed to have a service connection to Agent Orange exposure, and were therefore eligible for disability benefits. Per a Consent Order, when new diseases were added to the list, the VA was required to go back and promptly readjudicate any claims for that disease and pay retroactive benefits.

Sounds simple, right?

In 2003, the VA added leukemia to the list of diseases, but didn't bother to go back to prior claims of veterans with leukemia. Why? Because VA claimed its authority to pay ended in 2002, and it didn't think that the judge actually meant for them to include future diseases.

A suit followed to show cause why the VA should not be held in contempt of court. The court in 2006 rejected the VA's interpretation and set up a procedure to process the claims of veterans with leukemia.

The VA appealed, hoping to stall, and claiming — pay attention here — that the district court didn't have jurisdiction. The reply from the Court of Appeals: The VA cannot "divest that court of its authority" simply by refusing to follow orders that court has issued.

One can only wonder at the arrogance of the VA that's kept this issue in the courts for 16 years.

Is the battle over yet? The three signing Appeals Court judges hope so, writing: "We would hope that this litigation will now end ... that obstructionist bureaucratic opposition will now cease, and that our veterans will finally receive the benefits to which they are morally and legally entitled."

Putty vs. Tape vs. String

Q. I'm about to start a project to replace my old kitchen faucet, and of course have been getting all sorts of advice about the best way to do it. I'm confused, though, when it comes to sealing the pipe connections. Some people tell me to use a product called plumber's putty, others say use tape, and one retired plumber said string is the way to go. What kind of tape or string are they talking about? Which of the three is best to use? — Terry Y., White Plains, N.Y.

A. Any one of these three products can be used at your discretion in plumbing repairs, as they accomplish pretty much the same thing. They are placed around the threads of screw-in connections to provide a seal against water leaks.

Plumber's putty is a vegetable-based material that does not dry out and is easy to apply. It's used in other applications besides sealing threads, because it can be rolled into a string or a ball or spread along a surface.

Plumber's tape, more properly called Teflon tape, is wrapped tightly around pipe-stem threads before connections are screwed together, sealing the threads.

Packing string is an older type of sealing material that is often seen wrapped around the stems of older fixtures. It's still a versatile and reliable product, resistant to heat and pressure, though perhaps a bit more frustrating to apply than the two products above.

None of these products is a replacement for proper-fitting hardware and gaskets. Follow the directions provided by either the sink manufacturer or included with the replacement or repair materials. If directions call for use of one of these sealants, use the recommended type: putty, tape or string.

POLICE LOG

Editor's note: information below comes from a "watch report" press release edited by the West Sacramento Police Department. The News-Ledger continues to request that the department make a more comprehensive list of police activities available for review. Such information is considered "public information" by state law. Thus far, the department has not complied with this request.

Aug. 20, daytime

West Sacramento police responded to the report of a burglary at Golden State Middle School. Someone broke into a classroom and stole computer and multimedia equipment.

Aug. 21, night shift

Officers were dispatched to the 1500-block of Virginia Avenue after receiving a report that a man was running up and down the street laughing. They found a man "totally nude and highly agitated, yelling and screaming." The man is a "chronic IV methamphetamine user and has numerous felony cases pending in Yolo County." He was booked into jail.

Aug. 22, daytime

An officer contacted a man at the 2300-block of West Capitol and found that he was a "parolee at large." The wanted parolee was arrested and jailed.

Aug. 22, afternoon/evening

Officers stopped a car for vehicle code violations. An officer smelled marijuana. The driver and a passenger were detained. During a vehicle search, police found a sawed-off shotgun in the trunk and marijuana in possession of the passenger. Both were arrested.

Aug. 24, daytime

Officers took a burglary report at a business on Ramco Street. Rifles had been stolen from a storage truck.

Aug. 24, afternoon/evening

Police contacted a man seen loitering around the area where boaters parked their vehicles. He was found to be a "parolee at large," and was arrested.

Aug. 25, daytime

Officers contacted a man driving his girlfriend's (stolen?) vehicle, and attempted to conduct a traffic stop. The man fled on foot from the car on Hill Court, but was caught. A loaded .38 caliber revolver was found in the vehicle, and police believe the suspect tried to discard 10.6 grams of methamphetamine in a residential backyard during his attempted escape.

Aug. 25, afternoon/evening

Police stopped a man for a minor driving violation, then found he was driving on a suspended license and there were several warrants for his arrest. He was also arrested for possessing and transporting methamphetamine.

Aug. 25, afternoon/evening

A man forcibly stole a bicycle near West Capitol and Tower Court. The victim found the suspect and flagged down an officer, giving the officer the suspect's location. The suspect was found and arrested for strong-arm robbery.

Aug. 25, night shift

Officers conducted a traffic stop and found that the car had been stolen in Salinas. The driver was arrested for vehicle theft and possession of stolen property.

Aug. 26, night shift

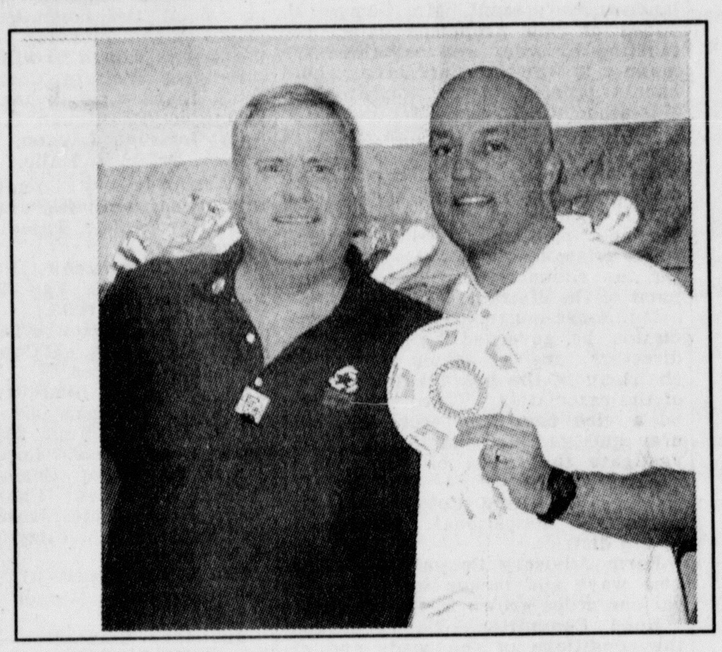
A Reed Avenue-area large retailer detained two women for shoplifting. Video records and statements showed that the two had planned the crime, and entered the store with no means of paying for merchandise. One was arrested and the other was transported to a Sacramento hospital for medical conditions.

Yolo exhibit wins gold medal

From Beth Gabor
Public Information Officer
County of Yolo

ABOVE: Yolo County's exhibit in the state fair, titled 'Get Real in Yolo County'

BELOW: Supervisor Matt Rexroad with fair board member Rex Hime



On behalf of the Yolo County Board of Supervisors, Third District Supervisor Matt Rexroad was on hand at the California State Fair's exhibit awards ceremony last week to receive a gold ribbon for Yolo County's exhibit entitled, "Get Real in Yolo County." This year's exhibit highlights Yolo County's real farm-fresh foods, real farmer's markets, real award-winning wines and real festivals which celebrate the county's rich agricultural and cultural heritage.

"This year's Yolo County booth is an excellent visual display of our deep and ongoing commitment to preserving our past to protect our future," said Yolo County Supervisor Matt Rexroad. "We have a lot to be proud of here in Yolo County and are pleased to be recognized by the State Fair for telling our story in this way."

The centerpiece of Yolo County's exhibit is a red tractor pulling a trailer filled with Yolo County produce and agricultural products, which includes organically grown vegetables (Yolo County's 8th grossing commodity). The exhibit also displays living grape vines (3rd grossing commodity) and bottles of wine representing Yolo County wineries – many of which won awards at this year's State Fair competition. Scattered throughout the exhibit are containers of safflowers, wheat and rice (6th grossing commodity) and three monitors which project dynamic images of the unique people, crops and activities found in Yolo County.

Those visiting Yolo County's booth at the State Fair, located at the west entrance of Building A, will be able to pick up maps guiding visitors to county farms, wineries, festivals and other activities, as well as guides and maps specific for each of the county's four cities.

California State Fair exhibit judging is based on five criteria, each representing 20% of the total score: content; marketability; craftsmanship; creative use of products; produce or artifacts; and technology/animation. To win a gold ribbon exhibits must achieve an overall score of at least 90 out of 100 points.

Yolo County's State Fair exhibit is a result of months of hard work by the members of the county's State Fair exhibit committee, with special contributions from the Yolo County Agriculture Department and U.C. Cooperative Extension who provided produce; the Yolo County Visitor's Bureau who provided information and brochures; WAVE-Channel 21 who produced the video presentation; and Mark Gaffney, the contractor who designed and built Yolo County's exhibit.

Now here's a tip! by Jo Ann Derson

• Antiperspirant stains getting you down? These stains — especially once set in — can be notoriously hard to remove. Try sponging the area with diluted ammonia; use a half-cup of water with a tablespoon of ammonia. Let the area set for 15 minutes and launder with a bleach-free detergent. Always check for stain removal before drying, as the heat of a dryer will just make it harder to remove.

• Never store out-of-season clothes in the attic, as humidity and high temperatures can take their toll on even the best-stored fabrics. Store them in an out-of-the-way place inside the house.

• "With four daughters, the spending on back-to-school clothing was getting out of hand. Finally, we sat our girls down and laid out a budget for them — and they are in charge of how to spend it. We showed them how to look for sales, how to pool funds by going in together on higher-priced items that they really wanted and reminded them to hold on to some of the money for things they might want after school starts. Each girl got her own prepaid VISA card to shop with, and I have to say they did really well. It was easy for them to beg for extra items when it was their parents paying, but they kept careful track of how much they had to spend — and saw how quickly it goes." — The C. Family in Washington

• Keep recipes clean while cooking or baking by slipping the card or page into the tines of a fork. Set the fork in a tall glass and you are in business.

• "If you have slippery stairs going into the house, try mixing a little fine sand into an exterior paint. The sand will give you a bit of traction, and it's unnoticeable if you get a paint that matches your exterior." — F.E. in Idaho

WEST SACRAMENTO LAND OWNERS ORGANIZE TO BETTER CONDITIONS FOR THEMSELVES AND THE DISTRICT

At a meeting of about fifty landowners of Reclamation District No. 900 held Tuesday evening at West Sacramento, a movement was launched to form an improvement club or association through which the landowners will have recourse to discuss among themselves the necessities and improvements of the district.

At the request of a majority of the landowners present, Mr. George M. Jones of San Francisco called the meeting to order and explained the manner in which the property owners should proceed in the formation of this association.

Mr. Jones stated that, in order to form an association from which the most benefit could be derived, there must be harmony among the residents of the locality, the property owners must get together, lay aside their personal grievances and everybody work for the common good and advancement of the district.

Mr. Jones suggested that the association be governed by a board of directors, one of whom should be chairman of the board and president of the association. There should also be a vice chairman, secretary-treasurer and various committees, to investigate the needs of the district, such as General Welfare Committee — For social and educational advancement of the district.

Farm Advisory Committee—To devise ways and means for improving various crops grown in this locality.

Road Committee — To investigate the conditions of the roads and arrange for the repair or improvement of them.

Ditch Committee — To investigate the condition of the ditches and arrange with the proper authorities for their maintenance.

Public Health Committee—To investigate the sanitary conditions of the district.

Fire Prevention Committee—To devise ways and means for the prevention of fires.

Levee Committee—To investigate the condition of the levees and arrange with the proper authorities for their maintenance.

Judiciary Committee—To advise the association as to its legal status on all questions and litigation that may arise.

These committees should consist of three, five or seven members, the chairman of each committee to report the investigations of his committee to the board of directors, who in turn should submit it at the next meeting of the association with their recommendations.

In this way the property owners of District 900 acting as a unit and having an improvement association behind them will be in a better position to confer with the proper authorities, such as the Reclamation Board, the Supervisors, or the State Officials.

Mr. Jones suggested that the personnel of the committees be comprised of the following landowners, if the parties named be willing to serve:

General Welfare Committee—Fontaine Johnson, chairman; M. J. Ballard, Chas. F. Dillman, P. C. Drescher, Miss Gertrude Lauken, Dr. Chas. J. Tolton, Dr. J. H. Haile.

Farm Advisory Committee—J. W. Grace, chairman; C. Parella, R. Merkeley, Harold Van Tassel, A. M. Jongeneel.

Road Committee — M. J. Ballard, chairman; O. E. Van Tassel, Thos. O'Connor, C. Parella.

Ditch Committee — Taylor Payne, chairman; Thos. O'Connor, Marcel Tash, Louis Ennes.

Public Health Committee—Dr. F. L. Atkinson, chairman; Dr. J. H. Haile, Dr. Chas. J. Tolton, Miss Gertrude Lauken, Mrs. Jessie Borchers.

Fire Prevention Committee—M. J. Ballard, chairman; Charles F. Dillman, J. Fontaine Johnson, Lauren Van Tassel, P. A. Fitzgerald, Charles T. Williams.

Levee Committee—O. E. Van Tassel, chairman; Marcel Tash, Louis Ennes.

Judiciary Committee — C. F. Metteer, J. W. Grace, J. Fontaine Johnson.

After some discussion, on motion made by Mr. Ballard and seconded by Mr. Van Tassel, it was unanimously resolved that the committees as suggested by Mr. Jones be considered appointed, subject to their willingness to serve.

The matter of the election of officers was then taken up, and after some discussion Mr. G. M. Jones unanimously elected temporary chairman to serve until permanent officers were elected.

Mrs. Elizabeth Marshall was unanimously elected secretary-treasurer of the organization and the name "Reclamation District 900 Improvement Association was unanimously adopted.

On motion duly made and seconded and unanimously carried, a committee consisting of C. F. Metteer, J. Fontaine Johnson and G. M. Jones was requested to prepare the necessary by-laws for the association and present them at the next meeting.

The chairman suggested that the following directors be elected as a board to serve with him until the permanent organization be installed: M. J. Ballard, Chas. F. Dillman, J. W. Grace, Thomas O'Connor.

On motion of Mr. Johnson, seconded by Mr. Metteer, it was unanimously resolved that Messrs. Ballard, Dillman, Grace and O'Connor be elected to serve with the chairman until their successors were elected.

A general discussion followed relative to the needs of the district, during which Messrs. O'Connor, Johnson, Jongeneel, Peltier and others expressed their sentiments and also their approval of the inauguration of the association.

During the discussion the matter of the moving of the school building from its present location was taken up and at the suggestion of the chairman this matter was referred to the General Welfare Committee for their consideration.

There being no further business, the meeting adjourned until 7:30 p. m., Tuesday, June 19, 1923.

The following parties attended the meeting and organized the "Reclamation District 900 Improvement Club" and signed the roll or expressed their willingness to co-oeratep in every way with the movement:

Teach them the rules of the road

By David W. Reed
Yolo County traffic court referee

Last November, I was hired by the Yolo Superior Court as a Referee. I was assigned responsibilities including traffic court and small claims court. The traffic court calendar includes juvenile offenders.

A number of the traffic citations involve bicycle violations. While most of the violations are committed by minors, adult violators are not uncommon. It has been surprising how many adult violators do not know that the same traffic safety laws apply to bicyclists as well as motor vehicle drivers. For instance, bicyclists are required to stop at stop signs and red lights. Bicyclists are required to ride on the right side of the road or in a bike lane in the same direction as motor vehicle traffic. If you ride on the wrong side of the road or the wrong way in a bike lane, you may be cited.

Many juvenile offenders are under the age of 16 or do not have a drivers license. Unless they have learned the rules of the road, their knowledge of traffic laws tends to be limited. For those bicyclists, it is important that they be taught the rules that apply to them. Parents are the obvious candidates to teach their children the rules.

A significant number of juvenile offenders involve bike helmet violations. Nearly everyone knows that young people under the age of 18 are required to wear a helmet while riding their bike. It is not as widely known that the same law requires helmets to be worn by under-18 skateboarders, scooter riders and in-line and roller skaters. The law was enacted for safety reasons to protect minors.

As kids approach the age of 18, they undoubtedly feel unjustly constrained by the helmet law. I suspect that many believe that wearing a helmet is uncool. Regardless, they are expected to obey the law or suffer the consequences if cited.

It is not widely known that riding double (or triple) on a bike is illegal unless the extra passengers are on a "permanent and regular seat". Bicyclists are also not permitted to ride on a sidewalk, they must have lights when riding after dark, and they are not allowed to have both ears covered with headphones.

As a parent, it is important that we teach our children these rules. Some of the rules have obvious safety reasons. It is easy to give examples why bicyclists should stop at traffic signals or use a light after dark. Aside from the safety reasons, it is important to teach our children that there are consequences if the rules are not followed as expected. No one can force anyone to follow the rules all of the time. But if we know the rules and we choose to disregard them, we should know that there may be consequences.

The court can only impose a fine to punish a violation. However, a fine is nothing compared to the harm caused when a motor vehicle strikes a bicyclist. Many car-bicycle collisions are preventable. We owe it to our children to teach them how to be safe and to make responsible choices. Your local police and the Department of Motor Vehicles can provide you with more information about bicycle traffic safety laws.

Letters to the Editor

More on the school bond

This is a continuation of concerns I have about Measure S, the proposed $59 million school bond.

Dani Langford had a very informative letter in last week's News-Ledger about building cost comparisons between our school district and neighboring school districts. It appears that our administration/school board has never heard of the expression, "Live within your means."

As per Langford's letter, the district has already been given about $129.5 million over and above the usual district funding -- to be paid back over 30 years. A little simple arithmetic will show interest costs for that period of time at about $132 million with a low 5.5% rate, or a total of $261.5 million -- utterly ridiculous!

Now lets get down to earth and look at the proposed $59 million school bond. There again at a low 5.5% interest rate over 30 years, interest costs would be about $61.5 million or a total of $126.5 million. Also utterly ridiculous.

If the school bond passes, this gives the good citizens of West Sacramento a school district 30-year debt of $388 million, to be paid back at the rate of $12,933,333 per year or $1,077 per month. Scare you? Me, too. Who pays this? Guess.

The above leads me to believe we sorely need administrators who can take their heads out of the clouds, or wherever they have them, and get down to earth. This also applies to the elected school board members who give the impression of being a rubber stamp.

Question of the week for the school district: What is/was the total district income, from all sources, per pupil, for the year 2006? Income -- not the amount spent per student. This is an easy question. Any third-rate business office would have this information available at their fingertips and also probably a report to the elected school board. It would be nice if this public information could be published in the News-Ledger for everyone to see. Or do we continue getting a wall of silence from the school district?

Open letter to Bush

While I'm sorry that Alberto Gonzales resigned, and I know he's your friend, I'm not really sad to see him go, for reasons too numerous to repeat here. However, please do not take this as an opportunity to further cave in to the Nancy Pelosi's, Chuck Schumer's and Ted Kennedy's of this world -- with their anti-Second Amendment, pro-illegal aliens and anti-effective defense of America crusades running at full strength, as it were.

Former Attorney General John Ashcroft certainly got my support when he rightly determined that the Second Amendment actually means what it says. I do hope you can either tap him, or another just like him, for a recess appointment (if necessary) lasting through the rest of your presidency.

Water thoughts

Such irony. On both sides of the Sacramento River we've been told (after Hurricane Katrina) that we're the most flood-prone area in the country. Yet for the first time many Northern California municipalities have been mandated to install water meters for use in all homes in a few short years.

With the south state having been thirsty for more river water from up north for decades, why not require the south state to pay for at least two-thirds of the cost of rechanneling water south, since more water makes vast acreage of rezoned desert land worth many millions?

I've also wondered for decades why multi-level new homes could not be designed with holding tanks to capture water from showers, baths, laundry and sinks, allowing us to use that water a second time for toilets.

GO FIGURE!

CRITIC'S CORNER
By D.N.A Smith

"Rush Hour 3"

Running time: 90 minutes
MPAA rating: PG-13

It saddens me to say this, but Jackie Chan needs to stop making action films. At age 53, the poor guy looks like he's in his 60s, and he no longer does the kinds of stunts that made him a worldwide star.

In his heydey, Chan was part Buster Keaton, part Evel Knievel — a slapstick martial-arts clown who did his own stunts — stunts so dangerous that the outtakes of his films showing him getting his bones broken for the sake of his art were as riveting as the stunts themselves.

In "Rush Hour 3" Jackie really shows his age, looking tired and much older than his years. It's obvious his enthusiasm for the action genre has waned drastically.

The film suffers from this because the few fight scenes featuring Jackie are truly uninspired affairs, lacking the energy so evident in Chan's better work. Also glaringly obvious is the copious use of stuntmen and CGI where once there was only Jackie doing the action.

Chris Tucker doesn't bring much to the picture, either. His screeching, mugging and bugaboo eye-bulging are not only grating, but also offensive. The eye-bulging double-takes are so Stepin Fetchit, the only way Tucker could've insulted 21st-century audiences more is if he'd performed his role in blackface and top hat.

There's not much to write home about where the script is concerned. The plot involves Chan and Tucker teaming up to find a list containing the names of 13 ranking Chinese gang bosses in order to protect the lives of a

Chris Tucker, Jackie Chan

Chinese ambassador and his daughter.

The jokes are stale and sometimes racist, and the action setpieces — especially the final battle atop the Eiffel Tower, are unoriginal. We've seen better this summer, and director Brett Ratner simply doesn't have the chops to deliver the kind of thrills we've grown accustomed to expect from action films these days.

Sure, "Rush Hour 3" will make a boodle, but that doesn't mean it's a good movie. If you must see it, wait for the rental. It's just not worth a trip to the theater. And while you're waiting for the DVD to come out, why not rent "Legend of Drunken Master 2" to remind you of how great Jackie Chan once was.

Q. What happened to the show "Pirate Master" that was on CBS? — Mary W., Clarksville, Tenn.

A. "Pirate Master," the reality show created by Mark Burnett of "Survivor" fame, is finishing out its episodic run online at CBS.com. Innertube, CBS's online television-episode subsite, began exclusively airing the show with the July 24 episode and will continue through the show's conclusion. If you go to CBS.com and click on "Full Episodes" and then "Pirate Master," you can watch the show from Episode 1 on. So, if you missed a week, this is your chance to see what you might have missed.

CBS also airs full episodes of many of its series, so check online and see if your favorite show can be watched from the comfort of your computer chair.

Q. I was happy to hear that singer Marc Cohn is releasing a new album later this year, but I had a question. He was talking about a "near-death experience" a few years ago. Do you know what he was referring to? I hadn't heard that he almost died. — Anon., via e-mail

A. Back in August 2005, Marc had just played a concert at the Denver Botanic Gardens when he was accosted in the parking garage by a carjacker. When Marc refused to give him the keys to his van, the man shot the singer in the head. Luckily for Marc, the bullet lodged above his right temple without penetrating his skull, and he was released from the hospital the next day. On the lighter side, did you know that Marc was introduced to his current wife, Elizabeth Vargas of ABC's "20/20," by tennis star Andre Agassi at the 1999 U.S. Open?

Q. Now that Mandy Patinkin will no longer be on "Criminal Minds," who will they get to take his place? He was absolutely wonderful, and someone has some big shoes to fill! — Anon., via e-mail

A. I agree! As of this writing, it was just announced that film and TV star Joe Mantegna will be replacing the incomparable stage and screen star on the popular crime drama. I think it's a good move to cast someone who has similar name recognition but who usually plays different roles than Mandy, so as to draw fewer comparisons and allow Joe to make his own mark on the show.

Q. I loved, loved, loved Helena Bonham Carter in "Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix." What's next for this talented gal? — A reader in Texas

A. Helena co-stars with Johnny Depp in the much anticipated 2008 movie "Sweeney Todd: The Demon Barber of Fleet Street." However, I'd be willing to bet that the production she is most excited about is the impending birth of her second child with boyfriend Tim Burton. The couple recently announced that she will be having another child in December, providing their 3-year-old son, Billy, with a little brother or sister.

Moments in time
THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On Sept. 5, 1666, firefighters in London begin blowing up homes in an attempt to halt the spread of a great fire, which left 100,000 people homeless. The following week, a royal proclamation mandated that rebuilding of homes be done with brick and stone.

- On Sept. 7, 1813, the United States is first personified as Uncle Sam. Samuel Wilson, a meat packer from Troy, N.Y., supplied barrels of beef to the Army with the barrels stamped "U.S." The soldiers began referring to the food as Uncle Sam's.

- On Sept. 6, 1847, writer Henry David Thoreau moves in with Ralph Waldo Emerson in Concord, Mass., after living for two years in a shack he built himself on Walden Pond. During his time at Walden, Thoreau spent a brief time in jail for refusing to pay taxes to support the war with Mexico.

- On Sept. 4, 1886, Geronimo becomes the last American Indian warrior to formally surrender to the United States. After several years of imprisonment, Geronimo was given his freedom, and he moved to Oklahoma where he became a successful farmer and occasionally worked as a scout and adviser for the U.S. Army.

- On Sept. 8, 1935, 19-year-old Frank Sinatra sings with a group called The Hoboken Four on the radio talent show "Major Bowe's Amateur Hour." The appearance led to many small nightclub performances, thus beginning a long career.

- On Sept. 3, 1966, "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet" airs its last episode after more than a decade on television. The popular sitcom focused on the comic antics of the real-life family of Ozzie and Harriet Nelson, including son Ricky, who later became a rock musician.

- On Sept. 9, 1971, prisoners riot and seize control of the maximum-security Attica Correctional Facility near Buffalo, N.Y., with 1,281 convicts holding 39 prison guards and employees hostage for four days. At least 39 people were killed when state police and guards stormed the prison.

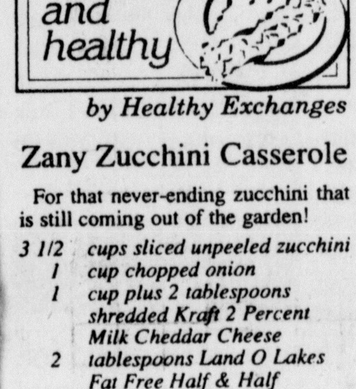
Fave Foods OF THE FAMOUS
by Steven Austin



Sophie Milman

With the release of her new album, "Make Someone Happy," Sophie Milman continues her whirlwind career as one of the music industry's top jazz vocalists. She emigrated from Russia to Israel with her family at the age of 7, then at 16 moved to Canada, where she made the unlikely transition from bookish teenager to glamorous jazz ingenue. Since her self-titled debut album hit the charts in 2004, she's been on an almost constant live-performance tour around the world.

As for her new album, Milman says, "While my first album dealt with my youth spent migrating through different countries and cultures, and the passion for jazz that helped see me through it, "Make Someone Happy" is about my life transformed over the past three years. This album reflects intense feelings and a time spent trying to make everyone happy: family, friends, loved ones and my fans."

When not in the studio or on stage, Milman likes to paint and make jewelry, work out at the gym and spend time with her family and boyfriend. Look for her on tour around the U.S. To learn more, go to www.linusentertainment.com

So, what foods make you happy? And what foods are faves for you to give as a gift?

"Foods that make me happy? All the big 'no-nos' like bread, cheese, potatoes. I'm a Russian Jew, so everything in the carb family is a favorite."

Your roots are in Russia and Israel. Which dishes from those countries do you always enjoy?

"Gee, so many delicious foods come from those two cultures. Israeli food is a treat. Beef and chicken shwarma, hummus and delicious salads. I also really love Jewish cooking. Chicken soup with matzoh balls or just plain matzoh crumbled into the soup, kugel and honey cake. Russian cooking is all about rye bread, chopped liver, smoked fish and, of course the jewel in the crown, in my opinion of Russian cuisine: borscht. I like it with some sugar and sour cream, but not the cold variety. It's all about the hot soup."

Your favorite artist of all time is Stevie Wonder. If he's having dinner in your home, what's on the menu?

"It's always good to be prepared. It would probably take me a few hours to get over the shock of hearing that he's coming over, and then I can start cooking. Stevie is very open-minded and globally oriented, so I am sure that he'd enjoy trying some traditional foods from my various cultures. Israeli dishes make great appetizers. For the main meal, it would be a combination of Russian and Jewish cooking. Hopefully, Stevie is into lots of mayo and sour cream, as the cuisines we're talking about here aren't exactly low-cal."

Any foods or beverages you avoid because they might harm your voice? Those that are good for your voice?

"The list of prohibited items when you're a singer is long. Can't drink coffee in excess. None or very little alcohol. Cannot eat less than three hours before a show. Not a lot of chocolate and sweets in the days leading up to a show. No spicy foods. Foods that are good for the voice are lots of water and licorice tea ... anything that helps soothe the throat. A common mistake is using peppermint. I drank peppermint tea and sucked on lozenges for years to help soothe the voice/throat. Singers, however, should avoid it because it has the opposite effect, as peppermint dehydrates the vocal chords, so I avoid it now."

CLASSIC HONEY CAKE

"This is similar to a recipe I use for a traditional Jewish New Year's dessert," Sophie says.

- 3 eggs
- 1 1/3 cups honey
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 cup strong black brewed coffee
- 2 teaspoon baking powder
- 3 tablespoons margarine, softened
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 4 cups all purpose white flour
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon

Preheat oven to 325 F. Grease and flour a 9-by-13-inch cake pan. In a large mixer bowl, beat eggs and honey together. Add sugar and mix again. Mix coffee with baking powder, and then add with margarine to the egg mixture. Add baking soda, flour and cinnamon and beat together well. Pour into greased cake pan. Bake for 55 minutes to an hour.

Strange BUT TRUE
By Samantha Weaver

- In 2002, the owners of a coin-operated car wash in Maryland couldn't figure out why they were losing hundreds of dollars every week when there was no evidence of anyone breaking into the coin machines. After careful observation, it was finally discovered that small birds were getting into the machines through the coin returns and flying off with the shiny quarters.

- It was way back in 1990 when baseball player Pete Incaviglia reportedly made the following statement about pro baseball players' salaries: "People think we make $3 million and $4 million a year. They don't realize that most of us only make $500,000." Only $500,000?

- In Shanghai, China, it's become something of a trend for affluent people to wear pajamas in the street and even to work.

- You're almost certainly familiar with the word "kleptomania," denoting a persistent neurotic impulse to steal. However, you may not be aware of another word that is derived from the same Greek root: A kleptocracy is a government by thieves.

- A porcupine is able to walk just two minutes after it's born.

- There are only two states in which it is illegal for you to pump your own fuel at a gas station. Do you know which states they are? New Jersey and Oregon.

- The current king of Spain was actually born in Rome.

- Researchers at Glasgow University (in Scotland, of course) have discovered a singularly unsurprising fact: People who have had a moderate amount of alcohol to drink find potential partners 25 percent more attractive than they do when they are sober. I'd really like to know how they conducted that study!

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF LIRIA GARCIA (aka LIRIA VILLAPONDO)
CASE NUMBER PB07-169

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Liria Garcia, Liria Lopez, Liria Villapondo:

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Raquel M. Garcia in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Raquel M. Garcia be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: Sept. 18, at 9:00 a.m. in Dept. 2, Superior Court of California, County of Yolo, 725 Court St., Woodland CA 95695.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A "Request for Special Notice" form is available from the court clerk.

FOURME D'AMBERT

One of France's oldest cheeses, this amazing Blue is said to have been around since the time of the Druids. While aging for a minimum of four weeks, it is periodically injected with Vouvray Moelleux, a sweet white wine, which gives it a delicate fruity flavor and subtle mushroom undertones. Perfectly sublime.
